DEDICATION

To Reverend Patrick J. Mahan, S.J., Regent of the Loyola University School of Medicine, who having been appointed to a reorganization task of uncommon difficulty, has with quite uncommon energy and skill during the brief period of nine years builded a medical teaching organization which severely judged by the quality of the student product graduating from its tutelage and by the productive scholarship of its teaching members has won for itself first an unwilling recognition and finally an enthusiastic acceptance among the best of the medical world, this volume of The Loyolan is dedicated by the Editors.

F O R E W O R D

The efforts and labors of another year have materialized in this third volume of the Loyolan. In this, we trust, are fittingly chronicled the events of another page of Loyola's history. And if, in the years to come, this book can recall happy memories of our Alma Mater we shall consider our labors well spent. In the light of our work, to the editors of those preceding Loyolans we accord our sincere admiration and respect for the fortitude that had to be theirs in blazing the way. To the editors of future Loyolans we hope this work will prove an incentive toward the furthering and improvement of the splendid purpose underlying the Loyolan.

LOYOLA'S VICTORY SONG

Cheer for old Loyola,
Fight for victory,
Spread her fame
And her fair name
With constant loyalty.
U! Rah! Rah!

Cheer for Alma Mater,
Laud her sons so true.
Onward to victory,
Loyola U.

Alma Mater, U! Rah, rah, rah!
U! Rah! Rah!
Alma Mater, U! Rah, rah, rah!
U! Rah! Rah!
Hit 'em high, hit 'em low,
Go, Loyola, Go!

THE PRESIDENT'S GREETINGS

To the Editors of this issue of The Loyolan I am exceedingly grateful for the opportunity its publication affords of perpetuating a graphic summary of the salient events of the most prosperous year the University has ever enjoyed. May its perusal serve, as without any doubt the perusal of its predecessors served, to germinate new ideas which shall be the inspiration for achievements still nobler and more numerous.

Exodus

Another year has gone again,
    Fleet time skips quickly by;
Once more we leave the dear old school,
    But with youth's passing sigh.
But there are some who ne'er again
    Shall pass through her bronze gate,
For they are gone, forever proud,
    To follow beckoning Fate.
And in four years that swiftly pass,
    We train in youth's bright school;
Will we feel sad when we must go,
    Into Life's whirling pool?

Student Government is a phase of college life which is often neglected and seldom considered in its proper sense. The complex character of college life and organization often leads to difficulties and tangles between students and between students and faculty which call for somebody whose primary purpose is to straighten them and to preserve amicable relations all around. Further, such an organization is needed to legislate concerning intra-mural affairs and to regulate such matters among the students as arise in their relations with each other.

Such is the function of the Student Council. During the past year this body has striven earnestly to carry out its appointed tasks and has enjoyed a real measure of success. Probably its most important accomplishment has been the standardizing of the class rings for the entire University, as well as for each graduating class to come. In other matters it has always done its best to smooth out difficulties arising in the Arts and Sciences department and this year has enjoyed the confidence of the student body to a hitherto unprecedented extent. The success of the Student-Faculty Banquet and the strict obedience to the freshman cap rules have been outstanding examples of this latter.

The Council at present consists of the four class presidents and of three officers, elected from the Junior and Senior classes by a general vote of the student body.

(CLASS OF '26)

*From near and far, from tower and wall,
From flaming bastion total gules,
The banners lift and gently fall
Like cradled dreams of sun-lit pools.*

*The breath of Spring in green reborn
Brings man rebirth of soul: once more
Youth dreams his dreams in the crystal morn
To laugh in the teeth of vaunting war.*

*Drop of the draw with a bounding shock;
Clangor of portal; a wind-snatched jest;
Bitter plaint of splintered rock
From driving hoofs,----and Youth rides west,*

*Full panopied with crest and shield
That speak in tongues of flame: in his ears
The singing of the winds that yield
Of high adventure----and of tears.*

Unharm'd, unchanged by human hands,
Withstanding tempest gales with ease:*

*Across this ground Youth walked alert
To find the hidden wealth of life.
The heart and mind and soul assert
The honor carried from that strife.*

*Youth found at dawn a hope renewed
And faced the day unspent, prepared;
Let no unheeding feet intrude
Upon that memory unimpaired.*

*Youth grew to know while growing old
The price, the glory, the renown

SOCIOLOGY

IN THE SOCIOLOGY LIBRARY

THE FOUNDER OF THE SCHOOL OF SOCIOLOGY

The School of Sociology of Loyola University was founded by Frederic Siedenburgh, whose activities with Loyola University date back to 1900 when as a scholastic, for three years he was on the staff of St. Ignatius College, teaching science and higher mathematics and in his spare time directing debates, plays and commencements. After his return from Europe in 1911 he was assigned to the north side campus as Head Master of the Academy which had been established a few years previous. In 1913 he asked to be relieved of this work in order to give his time to organize a School of Training in Social Work, which would be coeducational and would appeal to the volunteer as well as to the professional student. He gave a series of lectures during that year which were so well received that it demonstrated the need of a permanent school. In September, 1914, the School of Sociology with Father Siedenburgh as its Dean was formally established, and the school became an integral part of the University, not only for the social service classes but for other collegiate courses leading towards degrees and teachers' promotion. Under the leadership of Father Siedenburgh its membership has grown from 212 in the first year to 2,000 or more. But the principal growth of the School has been chiefly in the scope of classes and in the development of the faculty and standards.

From the beginning, Father Siedenburgh has also been identified with the social and civic activities of the city and state, his influence reaching as well into many national fields. He has served on various boards and commissions, notably the Illinois Centennial Commission, the City Motion Picture Commission, and more recently, on the Board of Directors of the Chicago Public Library. Among the national organizations, he has been an officer and a leading spirit in the National Conference of Social Work and the National Conference of Catholic Charities. When America entered the World War Father Siedenburgh volunteered his services and was called upon to help in the marshalling and organizing of the social forces of the country. He was a tireless worker in this field, lecturing, serving on committees and boards and throwing open the resources of the school for the giving of Red Cross training courses and the like.

In 1918 Father Siedenburgh organized the Illinois Catholic Historical Society and for the last eight years he has been its main support. In July of 1919, at the invitation of Bishop Muldoon, he helped to draw up the program of the National Catholic Welfare Council and for six years was secretary and treasurer of its Bureau of Social Action. He is still its secretary.

As a lecturer, it is literally true that Father Siedenburgh is known in the United States and Canada from Montreal to Los Angeles, from Seattle to Miami. He has talked not alone to Catholic groups but to Protestant, Jewish and "mixed" audiences, on various social and religious topics. Illustrative of this distinction is the fact that he was the first Catholic priest to speak at Sinai Temple, the Garrett Biblical Institute and Medinah Temple. Articles from his pen have appeared in many magazines, such as American Journal of Sociology, The Catholic World, Catholic Charities Review as well as in the English Month and Irish Studies.

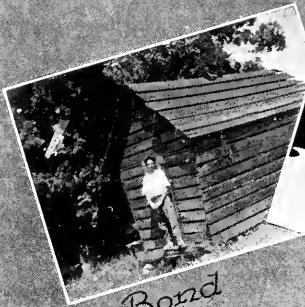

The field of Father Siedenburgh's spiritual activity has been so wide that his efforts have extended from the organizing and conducting of a Sunday School for Italian children during his early days in Chicago, to that of giving the clergy retreat in the Archdiocese of San Francisco.

The chief contribution of Father Siedenburgh to Loyola has been his work as an organizer. The School of Sociology in 1914 was the first of its kind in the United States and more important than its training of social workers and teachers, is the fact that it has always stressed the social as well as the Christian viewpoint with its thousands of students.

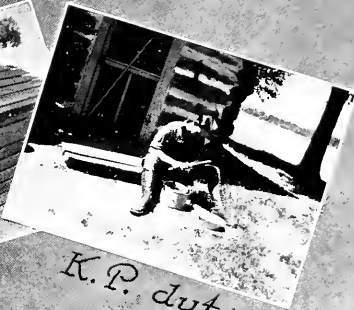

In 1921 Father Siedenburgh was appointed Regent of the School of Law which he reorganized on a coeducational basis, he added a morning school and secured for it admission into the Association of American Law Schools and the American Bar Association. The Home Study Department of the University was opened in the Ashland Block in 1921 and offered its first courses under his direction. It was the first Catholic school giving college correspondence courses. In September, 1924, Father Siedenburgh inaugurated the evening School of Commerce which with the Schools of Sociology and Law form the down-town school.

The Alumnae Association which counts among its achievements, the establishment of six scholarships in the School of Sociology has always had Father Siedenburgh as its faculty member and it was under his leadership that the Alumni and Alumnae conceived the idea to build the gymnasium on the campus. Father Siedenburgh was one of the first members of the Medievalists; at the Hamilton Club he enjoys the distinction of being the first priest to hold membership and of the newly organized Collegiate Club he is a member of the board of governors. He is likewise a trustee of the Social Workers Club, a director of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies and of the Madonna Center, and a member of various civic and social organizations.

The School of Sociology prepares students for social and administrative work through courses leading to a graduate certificate in Social Economy and to the Ph.D. degree. It is the down-town college of the College of Arts and Sciences with offices and class-rooms in the Ashland Block.

Home Study Department

"Are you ambitious?" "Do you wish to succeed?" and kindred captions have been familiar quotations to the magazine reader of the past half-century, for correspondence schools, which apparently appeal to the average reader, have been legion. Correspondence courses as an integral part of a university's education program are of comparatively recent origin, but since courses are now given by many of the largest universities, both state and privately endowed, as well as by many of the smaller ones, their value has been successfully established.

Loyola University was among the first of the Catholic colleges to give such courses and although the department is still young in comparison with that of the non-sectarian schools, it offers seventy-five courses with a faculty membership of about thirty. Because the courses are a part of the University's curricula, the scope of the work is limited in character, and a uniform standard of admission is maintained.

The Home-Study Department is a most democratic one. A student enrolled in a composition course, if asked to describe a surrounding scene, is as apt to describe a sluggish Indian village in New Mexico as a busy street scene in New York, for students are drawn from every state in the union as well as from Canada and the Philippine Islands. The ages of the students range from nineteen to an admitted fifty-nine and Jew and Gentile are often in the same class of study, although one may be in California and the other in Maine.

The largest percentage of the student body, however, is religious, for sisters, priests, and religious brothers, have found the work indispensable to their needs. The University goes with them, when they leave its doors at the close of summer school, and follows them to some otherwise lonely mission in an isolated part of the country.

While home-study students seldom meet any of their classmates (although it is not uncommon to have a number of the same community enrolled), they get rather intimately acquainted with the instructor, who often is called upon to send letters of condolence or congratulations, depending upon the happening in the family of the student which has confidentially been inserted in the forthcoming lesson. It is perhaps this intimate personal touch which lightens the burdens of the instructor in this "inky road to knowledge."

MERCY HOSPITAL

The School of Nurses

THE CLASS OF 1926

FOREWORD

We have come to the end of our period of preparation and as we look back over the past few years they seem fruitful in many ways. We have not only been trained in our profession, but we have acquired other, perhaps more intangible, but nevertheless, very valuable assets; our characters surely must be stronger and truer and greater after the discipline of the self-sacrificing life of hospital routine.

Before we leave a home that has become dear to us we wish to thank our benefactors. Our time here has been made pleasant, yes very pleasant through the efforts of our superintendent, Sister M. Thomasina, and our assistant superintendent, Sister M. Laurian. We also remember with gratitude, Sister M. Bertille, who was especially considerate of our likes and dislikes during our little jaunts to the infirmary. We will have interesting memories of our days in training and some day perhaps will look back with regret to think they have passed so swiftly by.

TRIBUTE TO OUR SISTER SUPERINTENDENT

To one who has ever been in the foreground of our life at Mercy we wish to leave some little thought, some little sign, some little indentation on the tablet of our memory lest we forget.

She has been one of our inspirations through training; her nobility of character has spurred us on when inclination would have allowed us to falter in our good resolutions. Her motherliness has warmed our hearts, her constant solicitude has caused us to feel as though we really had a friend to turn to in time of need. Many of us will roam far from Mercy but we will never think of these three years without some thought of our beloved superintendent. We will remember our first impression especially well, the ambition to do great things that she aroused in us, and the resolution we made to do only the big, the noble thing during our period of training.

During our first year the most difficult things were made easier because of her leniency in dealing with us. During our second year she urged us on to greater things by her talks in our classes. During our third year she repaid us for our struggle to become trustworthy by placing more confidence in us and by giving us greater responsibilities. In short, she has been the guiding light of our life as student nurses; she has been an influence that we will all remember for many years.

THE BELLS

Hear the ringing of the bells—midnight bells.
What a lot of energy their repeated ding compels.
In the darkness of the night,
How we dread to make a light
Perhaps to see an old man in a frame
Some kiddies with sore throats—
Or a patient taking notes on each pain.
But the patients who cause panics
Are the ones down in the annex, all alone.
They are calling, calling, calling
On the south end telephone.
'Tis for feedings they are calling
Of the famous milk and cream.
Be it either man or woman
We will have to treat them human
And be smiling quite beguiling to their calls.
Just keep going, going, going
'Til the cocks of morn start crowing
Answering bells.
Answering constant, ringing, dinging patients' bells.

THE SODALITY

During September of 1926, the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin was re-organized, and Esther Doyle was elected President, Gertrude Norris, Vice-President, and Althea Benning, Secretary and Treasurer. A Communion Sunday was appointed for each class, and monthly meetings were to be conducted by the President.

Rev. Father Collins has given us monthly lectures on the leading problems of our profession. He has been an outstanding character throughout our training, and we wish to take this opportunity to express our sincere gratitude for his kindly interest in all the nurses of the Training School. He has always assisted us in the regaining of our spiritual balance, and acquiring a sane perspective for our personal and professional life.

The Law School History

The School of Law of Loyola University was established in September, 1908, as the Lincoln College of Law. The Rev. Francis Cassily, S.J., was appointed by President Henry Dumbach, S.J., as Regent, and he, with Hon. Wm. Dillon, Hon. Marcus Kavanaugh, Hon. Patrick H. O'Donnell, and Arnold MacMahon, Esq., founded the School. Mr. Dillon, its first dean, was assisted by a faculty including Hon. Michael F. Girten, Hon. John P. McGoorty, Michael V. Kanally, Howard Spogle, and Joseph Connell, with Hon. Edward F. Dunne, afterwards Governor of Illinois, and Hon. Edward O. Brown, afterwards Chief Justice of the Appellate Court, among the special lecturers.

Opening with an enrollment of thirty, the School held its classes on the twelfth floor of the Ashland Block, but the rapidly growing student body made a move into larger quarters on the sixth floor necessary in 1910, subsequently enlarged in 1914. The succeeding Regent, Rev. Edward J. Gleason, S.J., introduced courses in Logic and Sociology, and he was succeeded in 1912 by the Rev. Frederic Siedenburg, S.J., who held the Regency until 1916 when he was followed by Rev. Patrick A. Mullens, S.J., as Regent and Professor of Legal Ethics. In 1921, Father Siedenburg was put at the head of the school and he introduced the morning school and made both sessions co-educational. In 1921, Mr. McMahon, who had been Secretary from the school's beginning and Acting Dean since 1916, was made Dean, and he held this office until he resigned in 1924, to be succeeded by Mr. McCormick, the present Acting Dean. Mr. Francis J. Rooney, M.A., LL.B., became the Registrar at the same time.

In May, 1923, and again in May, 1925, additional rooms were acquired until today the school is equipped with five large class rooms, five executive offices, and a completely equipped library of seven thousand volumes. In December, 1924, the School of Law became a member of the Association of American Law Schools, and in March, 1925, was admitted to the approved classification of the American Bar Association. This gives the School the highest possible rating. In September, 1925, formal post graduate courses were given with such success that they will be continued. At present the faculty numbers thirty, and the student body 280, of which 57 are in the day school.

FOREWORD

The School of Commerce has grown, during the two years of its existence, into one of the most promising and flourishing departments of the University. Those traditions, clubs, and societies which were necessarily lacking during the early months of building, have gradually come to hold a part of the School's life, and the future holds the assurance of an increasing student group and a constantly more animated interest in the welfare of so vital a department. The results of the work, taken from a scholastic viewpoint, have been gratifying and the co-operation which has been expended upon the undertaking has called for the debt of gratitude from all interested in the department's welfare.

The future is auspicious: it is the belief of the School that it is rendering a real service to the students and to the community.

THE SCHOOL OF COMMERCE

History

In the summer of 1924 Father Frederic Siedenbug, S.J., was commissioned by the President of the University, Father William H. Agnew, S.J., to organize a School of Commerce as a part of the down-town school. Mr. Thomas J. Reedy, A.M. (Creighton), LL.B. (Loyola), C.P.A. (University of Illinois), was selected as the first Dean of the School. The first classes were held in the Ashland Block in September, 1924, the original enrollment numbering 85, of whom 55 were commerce, 20 pre-legal, and 10 special students.

The school is co-educational and fifteen of those originally enrolled were young ladies. The student body contains graduates from De La Salle Institute, St. Mel's, St. Patrick's, St. Phillip's, and many other Catholic high schools and also a representative number from the public and out-of-town schools.

In the first year of the school's existence, classes were offered in Accounting, Business Law, Economics, and English. Pre-Legal students studied these subjects except Business Law, and also attended classes in American History and Political Science. In February twenty new students were enrolled and additional classes were offered in Accounting, Economic History and European History. Later classes in Business Administration, History and English were formed, and the school was prosperously continued through its first summer session.

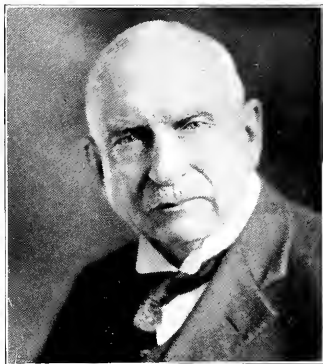

In September of the year just past classes even larger than the promising ones of the first year enrolled in the School of Commerce, the faculty was increased to handle the growth in numbers, and classes in Advanced Accounting, Cost Accounting, Advanced Economics, Advertising and Credits were formed. Each year it is planned to offer additional classes until the end of the fourth year when complete courses in Commerce and Business Administration will have been covered. The administration of the School continues to be handled by Thomas J. Reedy, its dean, and Francis J. Rooney, A.M., LL.B., its Registrar.

Chicago College of Dentistry

Dental Department of Loyola University

The Chicago College of Dental Surgery, which in 1924 became the dental department of Loyola University, boasts the finest equipment obtainable for its essential work. The building, located in the heart of the medical center of Chicago, facing the Cook County Hospital and surrounded by other dental and medical schools, stands out among its fellows as the last word in what a dental building should be. Its five stories are thoroughly fireproof and modern in every respect. The first two floors are devoted to clinics, while the others contain the classrooms and eight laboratories. On the three top floors there are also three of the best amphitheatres known, seating one, two and three hundred students respectively.

DR. CHARLES N. JOHNSON, M.A., L.D.S., D.D.S., M.D.S., F.A.C.D.

There perhaps is not a more eminent man in the Dental profession than Dr. C. N. Johnson.

Dr. Johnson is a Canadian by birth and he was educated in Canadian Colleges and practiced a few years in Canada before he came to the United States. He graduated from the Royal College of Dental Surgeons in 1881 from which he received his L.D.S. degree. He came to Chicago and received his D.D.S. from the Chicago College of Dental Surgery in 1885. He later received his Master of Arts degree from Lake Forest University in 1896.

Dr. Johnson has done work from the literary and educational standpoint of dentistry that will cause him to stand out like a Pike's Peak among the great men of the dental profession. No one in the history of dentistry has ever discussed as many papers as Dr. Johnson. A careful review of dental literature will show that he has opened the discussion of a large percentage of the papers that have been read before the old Chicago Odontographic Society, the Chicago Dental Society and the Illinois State Dental Society.

Invariably, when some distinguished guest appeared before any of these societies, Dr. Johnson was delegated to open the discussion. This, in itself is quite significant in that the universal opinion of dentists in Chicago has always been that Dr. Johnson was pre-eminently qualified to represent the real progress of dentistry in the Middle West. He is recognized as a great author, educator and teacher. Dr. Johnson has written over 550 editorials and nearly 200 original articles. His book on Operative Dentistry will ever stand out as a monumental work for the profession and will cause his name to be recorded as one of the great operators in dental history.

The past year has been in every way a golden one for Loyola's Alumni. The members of the Alumni Association proper and those of the Maroon and Gold Club, the active athletic unit of the Alumni, who have been constant and enthusiastic supporters and promoters of the "Greater Loyola" ideal for many years, have this year seen their dreams come true.

Homecoming was held on November 21st in connection with the John Carroll U football game, and, as a result of the gridiron victory and the splendid hospitality of the fraternities, and especially on account of the fine turnout of the Alumni, was a complete success.

Probably the most momentous event of the year for the graduates was the Greater Loyola Banquet, which took place on February 10th in the Red Lacquer Room of the Palmer House. Over three hundred Alumni and Alumnae attended and with songs and speeches celebrated the arrival of Loyola into the domain of the truly great. President William H. Agnew, S.J., the Deans and representative groups from all of the departments of the University, joined with the "Grads" in this celebration. Hon. William E. Dever, Mayor of Chicago, and Mrs. J. Paul Goode, of the Illinois State Legislature, were the guests of honor, of the Alumni and Alumnae respectively, and were also the speakers of the evening. The entire program was broadcast to the nation through the courtesy of Radio Station WJJD.

Loyola University Alumnae is ten years young and not at all apologetic for its youth. The organization idea originated at an informal dinner, held at the Hotel LaSalle in June, 1915, and the following October a regular alumnae organization was perfected. While a purely social spirit prompted the first meeting, the members soon decided to undertake a serious work, namely, the establishment of a perpetual scholarship of fifteen hundred dollars. Four such scholarships, totaling an endowment of six thousand dollars, have been presented to the University, and so each year four worthy students receive the course in Social Service as the proteges of the Alumnae. One of these scholarships has been named the Elizabeth O'Dea Scholarship, in memory of one who in life worked unselfishly for her Alma Mater.

The Alumnae has been doing its part in procuring funds for the gymnasium located on the northside campus. To date, seven thousand dollars have been pledged and additional pledges are coming in.

On the Alumnae calendar several events of interest appear. A lecture with a musicale is given each spring at some downtown theatre. Among the distinguished lecturers presented by the Alumnae have been Mary Boyle O'Reilly, Thomas A. Daly, Hilaire Belloc, Frederick Paulding and Bishop Francis Kelley of Oklahoma. Several teas, outings and luncheons take place throughout the year to enable present and past students to become better acquainted.

At present there are approximately five hundred members in the organization. There are two classes of membership, active and associate. Any student who has completed nine majors in residence may become an active member. A student who has completed one major may become an associate member. Only active members may hold office. The membership fee for both classes of membership is one dollar per year. Present and past students at the Schools of Sociology, Law and Commerce are cordially invited to join.

MISS M. LILLIAN RYAN

LOYOLA UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

During the past year the Library has continued to increase its facilities and enlarge its service so that it is rapidly taking its place as a fully-equipped university library. The librarianship of Miss M. Lillian Ryan has continued to make itself felt in the manner in which both faculty and students have been obliged in the use of the books and in the general improvement of the department and its equipment. Miss Ryan has this year been ably assisted by Miss Mary Sweeny and Father Froebes has continued in his position as the University's Librarian.

The various departments of the University each have their branch departmental library, filled with books for the special uses and needs of professional research work. Among these, the library of the Law School has been notably enlarged and enriched during the past year. The number of students availing themselves of the North Campus Library facilities bears witness to the popularity and charm of the main University library which is so much the center of any university's chief scholastic interests.

J. GORDON DOWNEY.....Secretary

The oldest active organization on the Campus is the Debating Society, which has the traditions of fifty years of active service behind it. This year the Society suffered a terrific blow in the loss of its peerless moderator and guiding spirit, Father James J. Mertz, S.J., who was unable to devote his time to the work, due to many other pressing duties. After a brief period of inactivity, Mr. Joseph Synnerdahl, formerly a debating star in his college days, and now Instructor in Physics and Mathematics, took charge of the Society. Under his direction and thanks largely to his own self-sacrificing efforts, the Society prospered and, after a slow start, grew at almost every meeting. The debates this year have been on a very high plane and the interest taken by the members and the initiative shown by the majority of them has surpassed all other years.

THE DEBATES

The debating season has not, up to the present, been a successful one in the matter of debates won, but in the matter of efforts, skill and sportsmanship displayed it has been more successful than any string of victories could make it.

The team had a poor and late start due to the difficulty in finding a moderator and hence in drawing up a schedule. Lack of time for proper preparation handicapped our speakers on both occasions, and as a crowning calamity, Pat Boyle, winner of the Naghten Debating Medal, the crack senior of the squad, was unable to compete at all, due to an operation. With all these difficulties before them, the debaters deserve the highest praise for their efforts when they had every reason for discouragement.

The first debate of the year was on February 19, with St. Louis University, home and home. The question was that of forming a unified department of defense, with an independent air force. The illness of Boyle completely upset the arrangements for the teams and new combinations had to be formed less than two weeks before the debates. Gordon Downey and Walter Mullady for the Affirmative and Robert Hartnett and James O'Connor for the negative were the final choices. A misunderstanding in the negotiations caused Loyola to expect the St. Louis affirmative at Chicago, instead of the negative team, which arrived shortly before the time for the debate. Downey and Mullady were hastily summoned from their preparations for the trip and were rushed into the debate before the Assembly of the students, while O'Connor and Hartnett made what was probably the most sudden trip in either of their careers.

At home Downey and Mullady based their arguments on the need for closer cooperation between the services and the necessity of aircraft development. St. Louis ably countered with arguments to show that this was not necessary and that the proposed plan was unsound. After an interesting debate St. Louis was given a two to one decision.

At St. Louis, with the main arguments practically the same, only with the positions reversed, St. Louis was also successful, gaining another two to one decision in a close and hotly contested debate.

The next debate took place on March 11, at St. Ignatius Auditorium, with St. Xavier College of Cincinnati, the opponent. The question this time was the ratification of the Child Labor Amendment, with Loyola defending the admittedly weaker affirmative. Again the hoodoo followed Loyola. O'Connor, Kelly and Hartnett were selected to represent Loyola, but less than a week from the debate, O'Connor was stricken, and Frank Naphin was hastily substituted. Naphin proved a real find, and more will undoubtedly be heard from him, but the period of preparation allowed was entirely too short, whereas the Xavier team was on a tour and had debated the question frequently.

After an exhaustive debate, covering every phase of the question, and featured by real oratory on both sides, the decision was awarded to St. Xavier.

We congratulate Xavier on her debaters and hope that this will not be the last meeting with them.

In the spiritual life of the student there is no influence greater than that of the Sodality of the Immaculate Conception. Few are they who have regularly attended the meetings who will ever forget the wonderful influence exerted over us by the common recitation of the office and, even more so, the short heart-to-heart talks by our beloved moderator, Father Mertz.

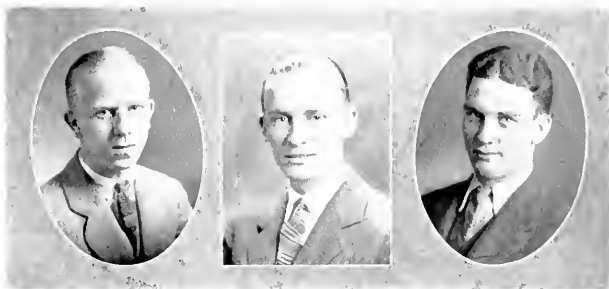

Meetings are held every Thursday during the noon hour and are very brief and to the point. That bugaboo of every student organization, the difficulty in finding a proper time at which to assemble, at first confronted the Sodalists, but after diligent research and experiment the Thursday hour proved to be the most convenient for the majority of those desiring to attend.

Besides the public prayer, the Sodality has sponsored other activities, especially the Self-denial collection for the Missions and the Maria Della Stada Chapel fund drive. In this last especially, while the Sodality as a unit has never taken an active part, yet every member has as an individual done all in his power to support this great undertaking which promises to give Loyola an object of unsurpassed beauty. If this campaign is successful, then we as Sodalists will feel that our labors and prayers have been rewarded. This drive, so dear to the heart of Father Mertz, will, if successful, be a glorious tribute to one who has labored unceasingly in our behalf and has won a place high in the esteem of everyone with whom he has ever been in contact.

The Sock and Buskin Club, after a year of inactivity, found a capable and energetic moderator in Mr. Bertram J. Steggert, A.M., Registrar of the Arts and Sciences Department and launched itself into a real program for the coming year. After a considerable delay in starting, due to a fruitless attempt to interest students of the downtown departments in dramatic endeavor, the organization again limited itself to Arts students and began its work in earnest.

The call for members was surprisingly well answered by the students, but the finding of those with sufficient free time to devote themselves to the intensive work of filling the parts in the plays was a different proposition. The securing of a suitable vehicle for the talents of the members was another of the problems which confronted Mr. Steggert. After long consideration, however, the play entitled "A Pair of Sixes" was selected. John Mullen and Edmond Richer were chosen for the leading male parts, and Miss Helen Byrne for the principal feminine role.

The moderator and the officers felt that it was time for Loyola to break away from the confines of local theatres and to give the city a real demonstration of Loyola's ability in dramatic lines, as well as in an athletic way. Accordingly, they engaged the Goodman Memorial Theatre, in Grant Park, for the event, instead of holding it in the gymnasium or in St. Ignatius Auditorium, as had always been done in the past. May 4th was set as the date for this, Loyola's first real venture in public dramatics.

For over six weeks the entire cast labored unceasingly on the artistic end of the production, with Mr. Steggert leading the van of effort. At the same time John Sweeney, Harold Hillenbrand and William Schoen took charge of the business side of the production and lent their labors as unceasingly as did anyone taking a dramatic role. Thanks to their self-sacrificing work, the managerial functions were flawlessly executed, and every possible phase of the vitally necessary publicity was thoroughly covered.

With the example of these efforts before them, the student body could not but be caught in the spirit of the play. An unexpectedly large number of patrons was obtained and the excellent ticket sale filled the entire house with a thoroughly appreciative audience.

This artistic histrionic production proved that Loyola could present plays of varsity calibre and on a scale worthy of a great university. We feel that all the thanks that can be mustered are due Mr. Steggert, who through his own efforts and initiative, raised the Sock and Buskin Club from the status of a mere nominal and inactive organization to that of a genuine, vitally awake society.

During the past year the Monogram Club has emerged from the rather obscure position which it has occupied in the affairs of the University, and gives promise of becoming, as it should, one of the most active organizations on the campus.

One of the prime reasons for the delayed start was the absence of all Officers except the President, Marv Adams, who at the first meeting was re-elected unanimously. The same pep and leadership which won for him the captaincy of the 1924 football team are evident in the presidential chair. "Bud" Gorman was chosen to fill the office of Vice-President, Russ Dooley that of Treasurer, Tom Stamm that of Secretary, and Al Cronin that of Sergeant-at-Arms.

By its very nature the Monogram Club is one of the most important organizations in a University, being in a special manner the guardian of the coveted L. Representative Loyola men who do not confine themselves to athletics alone, but who can be identified with every movement for the betterment of Loyola make up the Monogram Club. The diversified interests of the members have led some to investigate the mysteries of the soul, some the Arts and Sciences, some the business world, some the intricacies of Law. And in all their energies have been applied with the same vigor that has won for them the recognition on the athletic field. This ability which has existed individually in its members has been unified so that more may be accomplished and the true meaning and worth of a Loyola Monogram appreciated by all.

The Booster Club was organized last year, under the guidance of the Student Council, and this year started its work with a good enrollment and a wonderful display of spirit on all sides. Robert Hartnett, who had been appointed temporary chairman, continued in that capacity and was assisted by the Board of Control. Under this direction, the automobile parade to Milwaukee for the Marquette game was held and the members of the Club acted as ushers at all the football games and were responsible for much of the publicity work which preceded each game.

In December the club took a momentous step when, in response to an invitation from the mother chapter, the members decided to accept a chapter of the National Booster Fraternity of the Blue Key. The Booster Club was by no means discontinued, but membership in the new and smaller organization was held out as a reward for those who had distinguished themselves by outstanding efforts for Loyola and her activities.

The Charter members of the Blue Key were picked in the following manner: The membership committee first picked twelve men from the real Campus leaders. These men then picked ten more by election, and the twenty-two men thus chosen comprised the charter membership of the Loyola Booster Club chapter of the Blue Key. The men picked were all so outstanding in their support of Loyola that no fault could possibly have been found with the choice. Another election will be held before the close of the scholastic year, at which time freshmen will be eligible for membership.

The members of the Blue Key, aided by those of the Booster Club so distinguished themselves by their efforts during the National Catholic Interscholastic Basketball Tournament that there is now no doubt in the mind of the student body at large as their worth and merit to such an honor.

The Ink Pots are a rather informal literary organization composed exclusively of Loyola University students. Regular meetings are held each week and are featured by discussions of various pieces of literature, modern authors alternating with those of classical distinction. Some excellent discussions have taken place during the year and opinions are unanimous that the society has been a source of recreational and educational benefit to the members. In addition to the more formal activity of the organization there has been a great deal of social activity, and there has been manifest a spirit of friendliness among the members, which has constantly grown and will undoubtedly continue to thrive for years to come. But even if the pressure of external circumstances may cause separations, each one will continue to cherish pleasant memories of the gatherings of the Ink Pots.

This club is composed of commerce students on the North Campus, and thanks to its moderator, Mr. Peter T. Swanish, M.B.A., Professor of Accounting and Economics, has enjoyed a very successful year. Its program of encouraging its members to take an active interest in the activities which will afterwards be their life's work has been followed and all the members have shown a real spirit of co-operation that is commensurate with the aim of the organization.

THE MARIA DELLA STRADA CHAPEL

In surveying the needs of Loyola, one notices most strikingly the need for a chapel, a place of worship which every Loyolan can truly call his own. The chapel should be the center of the religious life of the students, the spot where the youth can seek unrestrainedly the solace which he so often desires. It is further the place of common worship on the part of faculty and students, and as such is in every college a treasured institution. Clearly, then, a chapel is one of the prime requisites of every university, and especially of one conceived under the auspices of St. Ignatius of Loyola.

But Loyola has no chapel which she can truly call her own. The student body has outgrown the faculty chapel and any arrangement for religious services other than in Loyola's own chapel is wholly unsatisfactory. Hence, there has grown a need for such a sacred edifice and with this need there has arisen a golden dream—the dream of the Maria Della Strada Chapel.

Before the glorious painting of Maria Della Strada—Our Lady of the Wayside—St. Ignatius of Loyola often prayed. Her shrine is one of the most famous in a city of sacred associations. And so there arose in the mind of Rev. James J. Mertz, S.J., the determination that Loyola's own chapel should be fittingly called after her, the Maria Della Strada Chapel.

The chapel will be located on the North Campus and will be of the same Spanish Mission style as are the other buildings there. Its principal interior feature will be a reproduction of the original painting of the Maria Della Strada, as pictured above, which will be the altar piece of the chapel.

The burning question of funds has been so far the only obstacle. And so, Father Mertz, who is unquestionably the most beloved man on the campus, has turned his bottomless energy to this difficult assignment. Under his able direction, and inspired by the very force of his wonderful personality the gathering of money has gone on with great success. The Maria Della Strada Auxiliary has been organized and through the membership of this praiseworthy organization much has been done. The students have further shown themselves to be behind this work which means so much to them and have loyally supported every effort made in their direction.

Throughout the course of the year, Father Mertz, with the co-operation of the Joan of Arc Club, has given various lectures throughout the city. The crowning effort of the year took place on May 3rd at Orchestra Hall when Father Mertz delivered a lecture on the history of devotion to the Eucharist. The affair, backed by the students, the Maria Della Strada Auxiliary and many public spirited Catholics, was a tremendous success in every way and the cause of the chapel was furthered immeasurably.

Hence we may see that the time of the actual erection of the chapel is not far off, that soon will be realized the golden dream of our beloved professor, that soon the plans, drives and lectures will materialize into an eternal monument to the energy, personality and self-sacrificing devotion of our own Father Mertz.

THE JOAN OF ARC CLUB

Under Rev. James J. Mertz, S.J., the Joan of Arc Club was revived during the past year. This organization has for its purpose the holding of lectures on the Maid of France in schools, convents and before societies which request Loyola University to furnish entertainment of this high nature for their meetings.

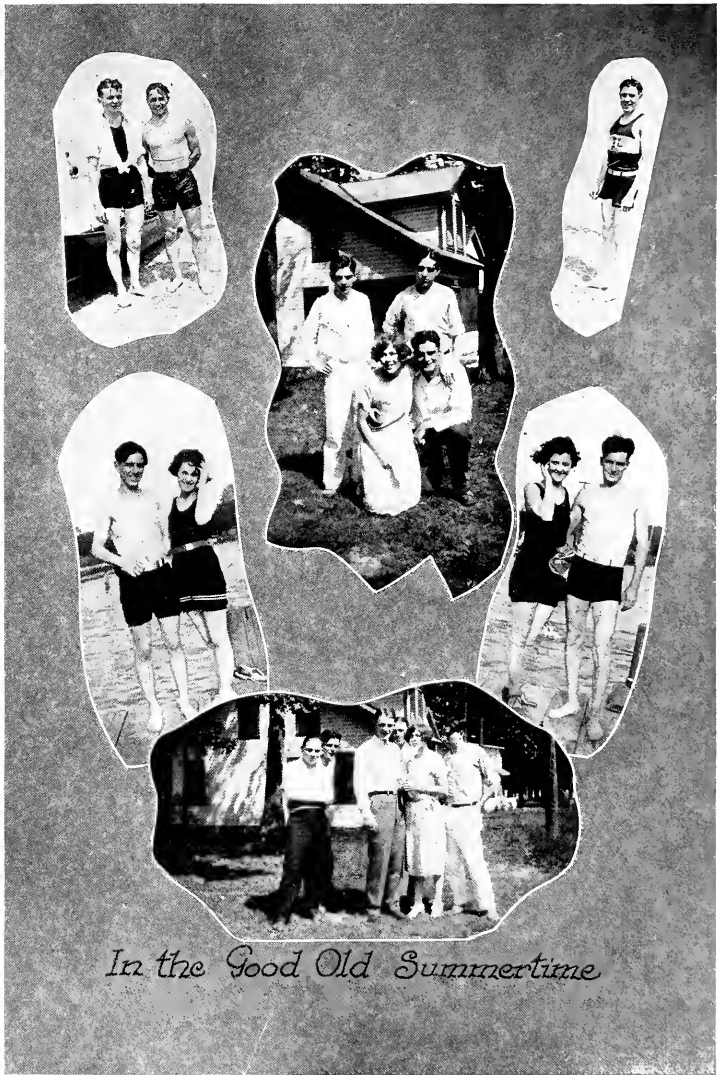

During the season just passed the lecture was successfully put on at the House of the Good Shepherd and the Convent of the Cenacle. Much interest in the project was aroused, prophesying a busy year for the next two semesters for the students who take up this good and interesting work.

Thomas J. Byrne, Frank Walsh, George Ray, Emmett Hogan and Robert C. Hartnett were the men who were engaged in the revival of the Joan of Arc Club, and it is to be hoped that their example will be emulated by others so that the other lectures which are ready can be offered to those who desire to present them to their schools and societies.

The Moderator

With the University's expansion and greater prominence in the public eye, a duty has devolved upon the school publications to do their part in being worthy of the new University and to advance it in every way. That they have done so in the past is, in great part, due to the work of the present moderator, Mr. Zabel, who has spared no effort to bring them to the highest possible standard. Upon his assuming the position three years ago, Mr. Zabel's only charge was the QUARTERLY and this he has made into a magazine equal to the best and representative of the whole University. Before his first year was over the idea of the LOYOLAN was broached and upon the moderator fell the greater part of seeing this through the stages that preceded the tangible 1924 number. In the last two years he has played no inactive part in its production and many of the features that characterize this number are his in origin. Beginning with this year the LOYOLA NEWS has been added to his labors and here his supervision has been as invaluable as in the other two publications. Truly all three of the school publications owe much to him, and in the future will, no doubt, greatly increase their debt.

THE 1926 LOYOLAN

With this, its third appearance, the LOYOLAN now begins to be a regular school event in its annual appearance and is no longer regarded in the light of an experiment. Many of the difficulties that attended the two earlier numbers have largely disappeared but many still remain. Three years is hardly enough time to reduce the procedure of getting out a year-book into a settled routine, nor does it bequeath an awe-inspiring total of experience. Every year sees particular problems and these alone are enough to give occupation to a staff, without having added the necessity of trail-blazing. For these reasons the production of this book has not been an easy task; a tremendous amount of labor is here represented and, withal, imperfections which are the product of circumstance rather than of persons. So, therefore, it is hoped that the reader who sees the inevitable flaw will remember the youth of the LOYOLAN and make allowances for this book, for which, circumstances considered, no apology is necessary.

In the composition of this work many people have given to the uttermost, but in handing the palm to the Editor-in-Chief, Aloysius J. Bremner, no one need feel slighted or overlooked. Behind every work there usually stands an individual to whose efforts that work is a monument, and as such a monument to the work of its Editor, the 1926 LOYOLAN may well be considered. To his position he brought the greatest of enthusiasm and no mean technical knowledge and these he dedicated at a considerable expense of valuable time and energy to make this work a success.

James Barrett as Photography Editor found an especially onerous task before him. The decided improvement in the selection and mounting of the pictures in the year's book are due entirely to the great amount of time and labor he has spent upon his work.

Thomas J. Byrne, Managing Editor, Harold Hillenbrand, Athletic Editor, James O'Connor, Literary Editor, Willis Carpenter, Organizations Editor, Marion Bremner, Social Editor, William Schoen, Humor Editor, Paul Reed, Art Editor, Arthur McDonough, Arts and Science Editor, Robert Lee, Medical, and William Campbell Law, are all to be commended for their unsacrificing labors for the successful completion of this work.

THE LOYOLA QUARTERLY

1925—1926

The year has seen The LOYOLA QUARTERLY continue in its indispensable and valuable position of ministering to the cultural side of the University's activities. The QUARTERLY'S position has always been a unique, albeit acknowledged one: it is the one tangible, readable testimony of just what has been achieved in the classroom in matters of information and inspiration. It is the one outlet for the cultural ends which humanitarian and liberal arts training stand for. Changing from time to time in physical appearance, passing from hand to hand in the matter of editorship, altering its course as necessity demanded, The LOYOLA QUARTERLY has yet held to one fixed standard of dignity and serious import. The essays, special articles, short stories, playlets, poems, literary criticisms, and dramatic reviews have been the expressions of talent and judgment which, lacking altogether, would leave a wide and gaping breach in the fundamental alignment of academic features of which the University should boast.

During the past two years the editorship has been in the ever reliable and productive hands of Joseph B. Byrnes, whose constant diligence, industry, and attention would, if missing, have left many an issue on the rocks of non-support. His constant presence and ready pen have been wielded, not only to write editorials and articles, but also to fill in the remaining spaces and to put into shape with moderator and printer the pages and leaves of copy. His leaving the school takes away by graduation one of its most trustworthy students, and his place would be hard to fill were it not logical to turn to his assistants, Norton O'Meara, the competent Literary Editor, Harold Hillenbrand, the Dramatic Editor constantly alert, and Thomas Byrne, the faithful Exchange Editor, who, in becoming upper classmen, remain to fill the important positions next year in their customary and completely satisfying manner.

SCHELL

O'MEARA

MACMAHON

James Roach, who has filled with gratifying faithfulness the role of Managing Editor, also leaves through graduation. Such chronicle features as the magazine still contains after having relinquished them in favor of THE LOYOLA NEWS when it was established have been skillfully handled by Thomas Stamm and James O'Connor in the University department, and by Marshall MacMahon and John Schell in the Athletics department. The contributors and representatives of the QUARTERLY from all departments of the University, and its large number of interested readers, remain to be thanked for having added the necessary encouragement which often stood needful to spurn even the warmest heart on its task of writing, compilation, and hurried editing. And so the conclusion to Volume XXIII may be written.

THE LOYOLA NEWS

1925--1926

Plans for progress and expansion adopted simultaneously following the establishment of the LOYOLA NEWS last year have been accomplished in part, according to the opinion of its staff. The passing university term offered a few advantages and a few obstacles. In the student body, it is assumed that no disturbing element appeared in its attitude regarding the newspaper. Unquestionably all departments of the University and the members of the faculties appreciated its sheer journalistic merits.

A further uniting of the departments by increased news lineage, the regularity of the weekly issue, establishment of a more definite staff organization with regard for efficient newspaper administration, adoption of definite editorial standards, comprehensive and successful reporting of the major university functions and activities, and the somewhat spirited attempt to introduce prospective students to the various positions, a constant and large exchange with important college publications throughout the country, the sponsoring and supporting of worthy scholastic and athletic projects, the initiative displayed in producing a genuinely enjoyable dance for the raising of funds in balancing the budget, and the incorporation of the modern and improved devices of journalism encompasses the essential results, professional and general, of the past year.

The platform of the NEWS remains unchanged. It is as follows: 1. For a greater Loyola, 2. To unite the departments, 3. To further athletic endeavors, 4. To awaken a greater interest in Loyola's needs, and 5. To aid in perfecting the Alumni organization.

LEE

CARMODY

O'CONNOR

What energy was manifest in establishing the LOYOLA NEWS in the previous school term was revived in September and maintained substantially until the close, this June. The five men who founded the NEWS succeeded in the face of existing conditions to perfect a larger production and circulation on a routine basis. Due to the provident assistance rendered by the administrative officers of the university the subscription price was included in the student's activity fee in the Arts and Sciences and Medical departments. Feasibility of the same plan in the other departments is at present being considered.

Of the divisions of the newspaper, the News department achieved the most prosperous state. The purpose of the publication in being of a service to the students was therefore accomplished for the most part. It is readily granted, however, that the several reportorial handicaps and blunders affect in no small way the extravagance of such a statement. The isolated units of the University, the comparative newness of the paper, and the absence of a journalism department are unavoidable hindrances in the progress of the NEWS.

We close with the hope that vacancies in the staff will be favorably disposed of in the next term by students adaptable for the daily grind in the issuing of a weekly newspaper.

THE SENIOR BALL

The balmy, starlight evening of May 22nd witnessed the greatest social function of Loyola's greatest social year—the Senior Ball.

One after another the softly purring motors discharged their happy occupants, before the imposing Palmer House portal, the girls' beautiful gowns in striking contrast to the somber formal attire of their escorts.

The seniors, proud and dignified, in this, their supreme moment, escorted their partners up the majestic staircase to the festive gathering in the Grand Ball Room. Then, promptly at eleven, after an evening fraught with glee, the orchestra swung into the martial strains of Loyola's Victory Song and at the opposite end of the highly polished floor the Grand March took form. Down the long room the line of Loyolans promenaded, with Mr. James T. Barrett and Miss Lillian Stanton, the beautiful queen of the ball, in the lead and with Mr. Herbert Schmitz and his fair partner leading the left wing.

The formal grandeur of the Palmer House Grand Ball Room gave a fitting setting to the stately Grand March. Back and forth the column wended, a scene of brilliance unsurpassed, finally to pause and sing with the true Loyola spirit the thrilling Victory Song, thus ending Loyola's most brilliant social function.

THE JUNIOR PROM

The "Big L" which the three hundred and fifty couples formed on February 11 in the Main Ball Room of the Drake Hotel will be a jeweled memory to the Junior class and the strains of the Loyola Victory Song which was played as only Jinks Bryan and his Chicago Yacht Club Orchestra can play it will echo forever in the ears of those who were fortunate enough to possess an invitation to the Junior Prom.

At eleven-thirty the Grand March started with the King and Queen, Mr. O. E. Sterrit and Miss Hertha Bigalke in the lead, followed by Mr. Thomas O'Malley and Miss May Collins, and the class officers from the various departments. As the line was formed each lady was presented with a souvenir bracelet of hammered silver. The long column circled the Ball Room and, forming a giant L, came to a sudden halt, where for one minute silence reigned. Then the orchestra again took up the Victory Song and the voices of the crowd broke out into the words.

The Committee, headed by Thomas O'Malley and Student Director Dr. Boyd, were well repaid for their many and unceasing labors by the smiling faces of the three hundred and fifty joyous couples who gave living testimony that the class of '27 has established a tradition which its successors will find difficult to surpass.

THE HOMECOMING DANCE

November 21 marked the first real Homecoming in the history of Loyola University. To celebrate the day properly, in connection with the open house held by the fraternities on the North Campus, a huge dance was held that evening in the Gymnasium. It was altogether fitting that this generous gift of the alumni should be the scene of the first real and successful dance held for the returning "Old Boys." A large crowd, with students of all departments and alumni about equally represented was on hand when the first strains of the enthralling dance music resounded throughout the building.

It was indeed a strange experience for the gymnasium to feel the merry feet of the dancers coursing over the floor instead of the rushing thuds of the basketeers, to which it had grown accustomed: to echo with music instead of hoarse cheers. At eleven o'clock the grand march started and, to the thrilling strains of Loyola's new Victory Song, the couples wound their way around the massive hall. Then the melody boys again took up their dance-compelling work and the evening quickly sped itself.

THE LOYOLA NEWS FROLIC

October 23, 1925 will be a date long remembered by the students of Loyola as a red letter day. It was the date of the Loyola News Frolic—the event which opened the social season of 1925-26. The Italian Room of the Allerton Club was originally engaged, but when it became evident how large the crowd would be, the committee was forced to arrange for the Sun Room and to get another orchestra. The "Bob-O-Links," who are managed by Dan Russo and Ted Fiorito, had been originally engaged and when demands for bids poured in, the committee engaged "The Whiporwills"—another Russo-Fiorito orchestra—also. After making these arrangements Jack Sweeney and his associates felt that they had provided for almost any contingency, but the crowd so far exceeded expectations that their provisions very nearly proved inadequate. In all, there were over four hundred and fifty couples present. Both orchestras proved to be superlative "wows" and many were the statements that the music was the best ever heard before the evening had advanced far. So perfect was the music and so well was every detail managed that although the dance was scheduled to end at twelve-thirty A. M., it was nearly one-thirty A. M. before the first couples sought their homes, reluctant to leave one of the finest dances ever put on by a Loyola organization.

THE SOPHOMORE SUPPER DANCE

The Class of '28, temporarily desisting from their self-ordained task of impressing the freshmen with the fear of the Lord and the Green Circle, continued the precedent set by last years Sophomores by holding the annual Supper Dance on April 9th. The Bal Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman, one of the best-known places of that sort, was chosen for the occasion, and the spot and the cuisine certainly lived up to the predictions of the most rabid yearling.

From nine P. M., when the first strains of the Jack Higgins' Orchestra sent the assembled crowd into an orgy of superlatives, until two A. M., when the strains of "Home, Sweet Home" dispersed the gay multitude, much against everyone's will, the dance was an ideal, one of those affairs which every committeeman dreams of, but rarely sees realized. Every detail was flawlessly perfect. At midnight, supper was served. This meal, featured by spring chicken, was all that one could possibly desire, but even this attraction could not hold the gay crowd at the tables whenever Higgins' boys burst into syncopation. Toward the close of the affair the famous Sophomore Triple Treat Trio, ably seconded by some other of their classmates added to the enjoyment of the evening by rendering some well received vocal selections.

At the close of it all, after all had reluctantly wended their ways homeward, there was but one opinion common to all: "The best Loyola Dance of the season."

THE FRESHMAN HOP

The social season of 1926 was formally inaugurated by the Freshman Class of the College of Arts and Sciences, who gave their annual Hop on Friday evening, January 15th, at the Blackstone Hotel. The music was furnished by Russo and Fiorito's "Bob-O-Links"—the same orchestra which gained such a wide reputation by virtue of their playing at the News Frolic. Over three hundred couples were in attendance, attracted by the fame of the orchestra and memories of Freshman Hops of former years. The management of the affair was in the hands of Edward Dempsey, Secretary of the Class of 1929, who through the aid of his assistants was largely instrumental in making the dance one of the most colorful and entertaining of the year. The "Bob-O-Links" lived up to their advance reputation and as usual were the source of much merited praise and comment. The Freshman Class set an example to the other classes by appearing "en masse" with their president, Cornelius Collins, and bringing a goodly number of friends with them. The Sophomore, Junior, and Senior Classes were well represented as was the case at every university social event this year. The pleasing strains of the music continued until one A. M. when the couples began to disband. Opinions were universal that the Freshman Hop of 1926 would go down in history as one of the really outstanding social events of the school season.

THE PHI MU CHI SPRING DANCE

The Annual Spring Dance of Phi Mu Chi was one of the most popular affairs of the social year. On that evening of May Seventh all roads led to the Sovereign Hotel. Hardly had the orchestra warmed up to its peppy syncopation when the floor was thronged with dancers.

Only those who attended the "Spring Annual" realized the full significance of the name. All the fresh, exuberant life of Spring was reflected in the dancing couples. All the beauty of Spring found its counterpart in the soft harmonies of light and sound in the sunken ballroom. As the night went on, the Spirit of Carnival reigned supreme and showered upon the joyous crowd a rain of streamers and confetti that under the play of colored lights became a weird and fantastic picture.

During the intermissions the merry-makers found their way to the luxurious lounges of the Sovereign, the artistic furnishing and lighting of which caught the admiring eyes of all.

As the last notes of the orchestra died away in the wee sma' hours, the happy crowd regretfully separated. With one accord, they greatly lauded the committee, for their efforts in this social success, and looked forward in pleasant anticipation to the next "Spring Annual."

THE NIGHT LAW FRESHMAN DINNER-DANCE

Late in April, when Spring was first really beginning to show herself, the freshmen of the Night Law School held their dinner-dance at the Pershing Hotel. The room and tables were beautifully decorated with marguerites and red roses, symbolical of the University colors, while the gold and maroon combination was more vividly effected in the gay streamers adorning the chandeliers and walls.

Among those present were Mr. McCormick, acting dean of the Law School, Mr. Rooney, Registrar, a number of professors, and the class officers, all of whom favored the gathering with quips and puns, speeches, and even flights of oratorical eloquence. Social and scholastic activities of the past year were discussed and mention made of plans for next year.

The banquet was most delicious, the music of the very best, and the frosh and their companions quite outdid themselves in the art of dancing. It was the crowning event of the freshman social season and it is hoped that the first-year men of the future will be as successful in their social activities.

THE PI ALPHA LAMBDA PRE-CHRISTMAS INFORMAL

On the top floor of the Allerton Club of Chicago, far above and beyond the madding crowd, is situate an aesthetic treat in ballrooms. Hung about with myriad colorful draperies, it ravishes the beholder with its cozy beauty. Windows on four sides open up an imposing nocturnal panorama: to the south stands the brilliantly illuminated Wrigley Building like a sentinel clothed in white, to the west a million twinkling points of light indicate where lies the sleeping city: Lake Shore Drive stretches its winding length to the north, while to the east one sees the swell of Lake Michigan and the harbor lights, now green, now white, now red. To this spot flocked the students for the annual Pre-Christmas Informal, sponsored by the Fraternity of Pi Alpha Lambda. With dancing to the rhythmic cadence of Jinx Bryan's syncopators or sauntering thru the spacious halls of the Club, the evening progressed swiftly until, promptly at twelve o'clock, Santa Claus and his big brother appeared, greatly to the delight of all present. A Charleston exhibition and the singing of the school song completed the entertainment provided by the dance committee and as the evening waned and the tired but happy couples sought their waiting cars, many were the expressions of enthusiasm and pride which proclaimed Pi Alph's annual classic a mighty success.

THE ALPHA DELTA GAMMA DANCE

On the night of January 29th in the magnificent Ball Room of the New Palmer House, the collegiately renowned Bobolinks opened the First Mid-Year Informal of Alpha Delta Gamma Fraternity. There was something unusual about this great social function. It was the first dance held in the Ball Room of the Palmer House. The great interest which this aroused could be seen in the unusual attendance, three hundred couples crowded the floor before the evening was fairly begun. A number of famed artistic dancers secured at great expense added the final touch to the highly successful evening. The inspiring jazz of the "Bob-O-Links," the smooth, glistening floor of the beautifully decorated room reflecting the graceful movements of the dancing couples, would give a thrill of pride and joy to any Loyolan viewing the scene. The dance was marked with the characteristic eclat of every Loyola function and made it the great success that it was. This success which was made possible by the universal co-operation of all departments of the University marked the Alpha Delta Gamma Dance as one of the most memorable of the school year. The Fraternity wishes to express its appreciation for the hearty support they received.

STUDENT-FACULTY BANQUETS

Arts and Sciences

Perhaps the most outstanding of a chain of very notable events for which the Student Council is responsible is the inauguration of the Student-Faculty Banquet. A double purpose was imparted to the affair, the honoring of the memory of Father Marquette the first white man to set foot on Chicago soil, by the selection of December 7 as the date of the banquet.

The committee composed of John Connelly, Marshall McMahon, James Barrett and Thomas Stamm, all members of the Student Council, worked untiringly on the plans and as a result the Rogers Park Hotel, no doubt, had never seen such an evening, or been taxed so near to capacity as on December 7. Every one was fairly bubbling over with amiability. Under the direction of Tom Byrne the Student Orchestra punctuated the seemingly endless succession of courses with snappy music, which was added to by the singing of the faculty and students.

The guest of honor, Doctor Derry, present Dean of the School of Sociology of Marquette University, delivered a most eloquent, interesting and scholarly oration charging college men with their duty in the world. Short speeches by President Agnew, Dean Reiner, Fathers Muehlman and Schmidt, further enhanced this aspect of the program.

Law

The outstanding social event of the legal calendar, the Annual Law Banquet, was held October 21, 1925 at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Club under the auspices of the President's Council of the School of Law.

While the meal was in progress a very lively and pleasing entertainment was given by the Benson Quartette, interspersed occasionally by community singing.

There were several brief and interesting speeches. Father Siedenburg and Dean McCormick gave talks describing the growth of the Law School and its increased advantages. Professor Tuohy delivered a snappy talk on School Loyalty, and other speeches were made by different members of the faculty. William J. Campbell, and Miss Evangeline C. Hursen spoke on behalf of the student body. Between the speeches vocal selections were given by different students and on the whole everyone spent an enjoyable evening.

Medicine

The annual migration of the Medics to the Auditorium Hotel, Thursday evening, April 29th, was attended with a measure of brilliance, not even dreamed of by the most ardent boosters of this affair. Since its inception, twelve years back, the Banquet has always ridden in on the high tide of Social calendar, and all things Medical during the year, have pointed to it, as THE event.

The present year proved no different. The tables, every available one, were seized upon with avidity, and the opening strains of the orchestra found the Banquet hall filled to overflowing, with well over three hundred students, doctors and their friends.

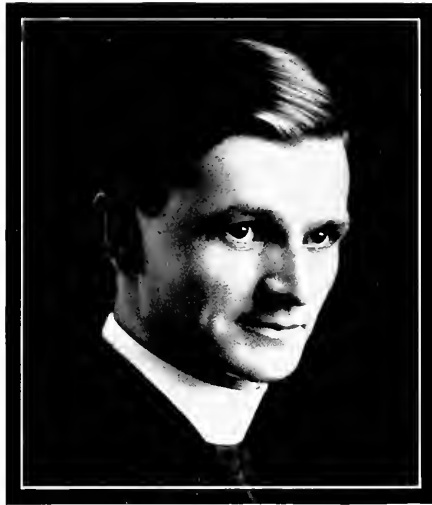

After and between numbers by the orchestra, and interspersed between the class performances, speeches from the honorable doctors present, served to round out a perfect evening, of which it has been said, no one leaves without a sincere wish that it would never end.

ROGER KILEY, Head Coach

COACH KILEY

Coach Kiley holds a place at Loyola that is unique. In addition to being an expert coach, he has a place in the heart of every Loyola student. His influence is felt not only in things relating to the gridiron but in the every day life of Loyola students. His untiring efforts to give Loyola University a football team that will rank at the top of the Middle West and even of the country have, in good measure, been rewarded this year.

Coach Kiley before coming to Loyola as Head Coach set a high standard for himself at Notre Dame University where he was an All-American end on the football team, and captain of the baseball and basketball teams. His leadership at South Bend is reflected in his work at Loyola. More than a coach to his football team, he has acquired the confidence of his men, and this confidence has been reflected in their successes of last season. Loyola University congratulates Coach Kiley for his past successes, and is happy to contemplate the success which will surely be attached to every thing he undertakes.

LEONARD SACHS, Basketball Coach

THE BASKETBALL COACH

Leonard Sachs, coach of University basketball, and high school football, basketball and track, has been repaid to some extent this season by the success which has come to his teams. This year his Varsity basketball team stood up with the rest of them by virtue of their defeats of Creighton University, St. Louis University, Marquette University and a host of others. His high school team took the title in both basketball and football and should repeat in taking again the track championship. Coach Sachs is deserving of the success he has had in athletics at Loyola for his unselfish labors in putting athletics on their present high station here. He, himself, is one of the foremost athletes of Chicago, and is recognized everywhere, not only a player of ability, but as a sportsman of the highest caliber.

Besides having these various duties as a coach he is also conducting gymnasium classes, and taking an active part in the National Catholic Basketball Tournament. Leonard Sachs has been secretary of the Board of Instructors for the past three years and has made himself an essential part of the organization of the great "Cardinal Cup Classic."

The entire student body of the University, and especially the various players who performed under his direction, take this means of wishing him more success in bringing victory to Loyola. Not victory at the cost of sportsmanship, but victory as he has won in his own games, and victory as he teaches Loyola players to win it: victory by hard, clean playing at all times.

THE ASSISTANT COACH

WILLIAM CERNEY
Assistant Coach

Bill Cerney, who assisted Coach Roger Kiley, in turning out his football machine, has more things than his fine record at Loyola University to distinguish him. Bill was formerly a student at Saint Ignatius High School, on the West Side, where he gathered quite a reputation as a football player. After graduating from High School, Cerney entered the University of Notre Dame where he played on the Hall teams while in his freshman year. For the next two years Cerney was a member of the regular squad, and in his senior year was an important cog in Notre Dame's national Champions.

His duties consisted chiefly in drilling the backfield men, though he also coached the line at various times during the season. His thorough knowledge of the game from all angles, as well as his catching personality, made Bill a favorite with all the players. Since the football season Cerney became a married man, and all students of Loyola, as well as players, unite in wishing him as good luck in marriage as he enjoyed in football.

THE PHYSICAL DIRECTOR

At the beginning of the year a new physical director and gymnasium manager was appointed. Edward McMahon, who has come to be known for many likeable characteristics by most of the students of the school, was the one appointed.

"Mac" came to Loyola with a lot of experience in all sorts of athletic contests, in addition to being quite an athlete himself. He is a graduate of Princeton, Illinois, high school, where he won the fifty yard, the hundred yard, and the two-twenty yard events in the country meet. In addition he played both football and baseball with various amateur leagues in his section of the state.

One of the biggest things that Mac has to his credit for the first year at Loyola is the erection of the new indoor track in the Gymnasium. A good deal of the credit for this belongs to McMahon, who, if his first year is any indication, will be one of the well knowns dear to the heart of the student body.

EDWARD MCMAHON
Physical Director

JOHN E. SCHELL, Senior Manager

STUDENT MANAGERS

JOHN E. SCHELL.....	Senior Manager
MARSHALL I. McMAHON.....	Junior Manager
ROBERT E. MORRIS.....	Assistant Manager

JOHN SCHELL—MANAGER

John Schell—a hard worker, with all the qualities demanded of a good manager. As is indicated by his work as manager of the football team during the past year, John had them in the highest degree. Every minute of his time was spent in the service of the team and the school and, as a result, his personal influence was tremendous. It was largely through his efforts that the season ran off as smoothly and harmoniously as it did. The coach's burden was considerably lightened by the realization that John would carry out his part of the work to be done capably and efficiently. Moreover, John is a "regular fellow." The players regard him as one of themselves and the influence of their pleasant relations has had a beneficent effect on the morale of the team as a whole.

Since his entrance into the managerial field three years ago the successes of the teams have increased by leaps and bounds. Much of the credit for this is due to Johnny and his corps of able assistants. Nor has his toil been restricted entirely to football. He was a prominent official of the National Catholic Tournament, and as in everything else, his work was done thoroughly.

His graduation this year will leave a void in the athletic department which will be difficult to fill. It is with a genuine appreciation of your work that the coaches, athletes and students extend to you best wishes for coming years, John, and all hope that you will be as active and prominent an alumnus as you were a student.

MARSHALL McMAHON—ASS'T MANAGER

"Mush," a Junior in the Arts Department, was assistant manager of football and manager of basketball. The success of the basketball team this year is a fitting tribute to his executive ability. He drew up, after much hard work, the hardest schedule for the basketball team in the history of the school. Several pleasant and enjoyable trips were arranged by him for the team, of which the members were deeply appreciative. In addition he was constantly at the service of the team and the coach and by his friendliness and ready wit aided largely in upholding spirit and enthusiasm among the team. And with everyone looking forward to next season, the knowledge that "Mush," as football manager, will aid in guiding Loyola's warriors through the schedule, will be a source of satisfaction and confidence to Loyola's many followers.

McMAHON

MORRIS

HAROLD HILLENBRAND—PUBLICITY DIRECTOR

Few members of the student body know much about Hilly's work in the athletic line. The publicity manager's job is a thankless one for the most part. But who was it that secured football and basketball writeups, for the Tournament publicity as well as that for the Loyola Relays? Who manages the athletic department of the LOYOLA NEWS? None other than Harold Hillenbrand! He probably spends more time on matter related to the athletic activities of the school than some of the athletes. During the Tournament he was Ed. Krupka's right hand man and on more than one occasion worked all night handling innumerable routine details. Few knew of this work, but those who did appreciate it deeply. Over and above this, too, Harold is an outstanding student, one of the founders of the Loyola News, and Dramatic Editor of the Loyola Quarterly. There are few at Loyola who can boast of such a long list of activities. And when one realizes that he is one of the best known and popular men on the Campus, it is evident that he is one of the biggest of Loyola's boosters.

ROBERT MORRIS—ASST MANAGER

"Bob" is the "Old Faithful" of the managerial force. Ever since he accepted the position of assistant manager, Bob has proven himself to be an excellent worker and one of the most enthusiastic Boosters on the Campus. Bob's heart and soul were in his work and he was always on the job at much sacrifice of his own time and labor. And that his work had much to do with the success of the football team during the past season is a generally recognized fact on the Campus—witness the tributes paid him by Coach Kiley and the football letter men at the banquet. Every one without exception had a word of praise for "little Bob." His work in the management of the Basketball Tournament was also outstanding. It is indeed fortunate that he will be back next year with his ready smile and helping hand to contribute to Loyola's future victories.

BROWN

THE CHEERLEADERS

In the all-important matter of supporting the teams, the cheerleaders play perhaps the most important role. To draw the cheers from a crowd and to do it properly requires a personality and an amount of skill which the average person cannot possess. Loyola was exceedingly fortunate in having this year, not one, but three men who in every way lived up to the specifications. These men were selected for the first time after an open competition in which about eight aspirants were given an opportunity to show their worth and to try it out on the student body.

EDDIE RICHER, Head Cheerleader

Eddie, serving his second season with the megaphone, showed that practice makes perfect. He showed a constant improvement in every detail of the difficult work, and his efforts and enthusiasm inspired his colleagues constantly to better attempts.

JIMMY HUGHES

The clown of the yell staff. His antics won the shrieks of the crowds, but when he called for a double locomotive he got one which could be heard all over Chicago.

AL BROWN

Al's easy manner and open personality endeared him to the hearts of the rooters and the volume of the cheers he got confirmed this popularity. St. Louis is still talking about the hit he made there last fall.

THE SQUAD, 1925

Top Row: JOHNSON, NORTON, CRONIN, BUSH, GRIFFIN, MANAGER J. SCHILL,
Second Row: ROGER KILLY, Coach, CAPTAIN-ELCT DAN LAMONT, WITTY, MEADE, GOTT, FLYNN, ASS'T. MANAGER McMAHON,
Last Row: GRIFFIN, LAWLESS, ADAMS, CAPTAIN BUD GORMAN, STAMM, LEHRER.

The L Men

LAWRENCE GORMAN, CAPTAIN

Captain Lawrence "Bud" Gorman, mentioned for All-American fullback by Rockne and Smith, proved to be every bit worthy of the honor by his play and leadership during the season of 1925. Bud started off the season with a ninety yard run against Marquette and kept up this spectacular playing all season. Loyola is proud of Gorman and his team, and she knows that Bud's splendid leadership was a most important factor in making the last Loyola's most successful season.

DANIEL LAMONT, END

One of the best ends Loyola ever had. A statement which is borne out by every team Dan played against. The effect of Dan's ability and personality can be seen from the fact that he was chosen to lead the 1926 team. Our future All-American. Junior. Chicago.

EDDIE NORTON, HALFBACK

"Ma" was the sensation of the year. In every game Eddie took part he broke loose at least once for a good gain. Ed's two big days, besides all the others, were at his home town, Davenport, and at St. Louis. A whale around the ends. Sophomore. Davenport.

HUGH BURKE, GUARD

Hugh took his place in Kiley's machine as though he had been a regular for two years. A versatile player who made a good deal of fame because of his fine showing against the Haskell Indians. Next year Hugh will be one of the headliners on the squad.

LAWRENCE FLYNN, GUARD

"Larry" again started at his old place in the line. His consistent playing and his knack of breaking through on punts again won for him the acclaim he has been greeted with for the past two years. One of Loyola's best bets. Junior. Chicago.

LAMONT

NORTON

BURKE

FLYNN

EDWIN BERWICK, CENTER

"Big Ed" surely ended his collegiate career in splendid fashion. An expert on the offense and defense, Berwick was the well known "brick wall" while in the game. Hit the high spots in the Marquette game. Ed's last year. Senior. Chicago.

JOSEPH WITRY, GUARD

"Fighting Joe" merely took a regular place on the eleven this season, his second year with the squad. Joe's tendency to inject pep into the battle made him famous wherever he played. "Big" Joe did good work against the Indians. Sophomore. Chicago.

ARTHUR MURPHY, CENTER

Though Art was handicapped during the season by injuries, he managed to get in the St. Louis papers for the splendid work he did against the Billikens. An expert passer, who saved more than one game by his sure-fire passing. Junior. Chicago.

FRANK GILMORE, TACKLE

"Ham" was laid up for a good part of the season with an injured knee. "Pete's" bulk as well as his ability to snare the runner were qualities that made him unpopular with the opposition. Due for a big season next year. Junior. Chicago.

BERWICK

WITRY

MURPHY

GILMORE

ANTHONY LAWLESS, FULLBACK

Tony was on the squad for the first year and if he keeps up the work he displayed this year he should be a top notcher next year. Tony showed well in the games he played in. Against Carroll his plunging was a feature. A real prospect. Freshman. Peoria.

LARS LUNDGOOT,
QUARTERBACK

Loyola's old reliable. Lars alternated with Eddie Johnson at quarterback and was a highly polished signal barker. Lars is a brainy field general and his trained toe was an important factor in garnering the extra points. Junior. Chicago.

MARVIN ADAMS, HALFBACK

Marv again did his stuff at halfback and was one of the most dependable ground gainers on the squad. He was also one of the best bets when Kiley unleashed his passing game. Marv is a halfback with ability and nerve. Senior. Chicago.

AL CRONIN, FULLBACK

At times Whitey took Gorman's place and he had to go some to replace Bud even for a time. Whitey's list of good games is too long, so only a mere mention is made of Haskell, St. Louis, and Dayton. Dayton knows he's good. Junior. Chicago.

LAWLESS

LUNDGOOT

MARTIN GRIFFEN, HALFBACK

No man playing his first year as a regular has ever made a better impression than did Marty last year. His work at half was one of the outstanding events of the season. Marty scored the winning touchdown against the Indians besides figuring in the scoring in many other tilts. Will be a headliner.

FRANK BUTLER, FULLBACK

Though unable to crowd Gorman and Cronin out of the picture, Frank is sure to be heard from when the old boys leave. A sturdy half, with a knack for line plunging, as he hits the line low and hard.

JOSEPH BUSH, END

"Big" Joe lived up to the record he has made in previous years. Joe played almost a quarter against Carroll with a badly injured shoulder. One of the most aggressive men in Loyola mole-skins. Joe is now a married man, and we wish him the same success next year on the football field as he is having in married life.

HAROLD LEDERER, GUARD

"Harry" is one of the smiling kind who takes all the bumps on the field with a smile and then tackles a little bit harder in return. His weight and ability added much to the line when he was in the game.

GRIFFEN

BUSH

BUTLER

LEDERER

CLARENCE PARENT,
QUARTERBACK

"Clar" has proved to be a brainy field general in the workouts last fall. He is an adept at calling the proper play at the proper time and this quality will make him come to the front next year as a signal caller.

PHIL BRENNAN, END

As a recommendation Phil will not need any for those who saw him work in the game against Haskell. Stepping into the game at the last minutes, Brennan turned in such a finished performance that he will see a lot of action at end next season.

HAMILTON GREEN, TACKLE

"Babe" is one of the mainstays on the squad. In every tilt he played, Babe did something to make a hit with the crowd. Against St. Ambrose Babe played one of the best games of his career, and that is saying a lot when his work for past years is considered.

WILLIAM MEADE, TACKLE

Bill put on several classy performances at various times during the season. His work at tackle against the Haskell Indians was especially commendable. Meade will be one of the boys that will figure greatly in 1926.

PARENT

BRENNAN

MEADE

DOUGLAS GOTT, TACKLE

"Doug" was one of the best relief men on the squad. Several times when some of the regulars were injured Gott replaced them and turned in such finished performances that everyone thought that the regular was in. A valuable man.

THOMAS REEDY, TACKLE

"Tom," in his first year on the squad, gave a lot of promise at tackle. In addition to being a husky tackle on the "frosch" eleven, Tom is a member of the basketball team, having made himself one of the team's star guards.

EMMETT ETU, HALFBACK

Another of the first year men who will be fighting for the regular positions next year. "Em" is an aggressive player, with an especial liking for end runs. With another year Etu will be heard from at halfback.

JACK DOWNS, HALFBACK

Jack did some classy performing at half in some games. In the game against John Carroll Downs gained a lot of ground and proved himself especially as a defensive back. He is fast, has the weight and ability to make a back of the highest caliber.

GOTT

REEDY

ETU

RYAN MULLEN, QUARTERBACK

Against John Carroll, "Mu" led the boys at quarterback, calling the plays with a quick insight into the conditions. He brought the team into scoring distance of the goal and helped put over the touchdown that was the winning marker. A player that knows football.

ED. JOHNSON, QUARTERBACK

"Ed" garnered fame this season for more reasons than one. Besides playing at quarter in most of the games and displaying a brainy knowledge of football, he was an expert in running back punts. "Johnny" did some fine work against St. Louis. A real quarterback and a real fellow.

THOMAS STAMM, QUARTERBACK

"Tom's" last year on the team was a fitting close to his brilliant career both scholastically and athletically. Tom was one of the most likeable men on the squad, and had besides this a lot of knowledge about how the quarterback position should be played. A splendid wearer of the "L."

JOHN MASELTER, GUARD

John also played his last year on the squad. A rather late start in football kept him from being one of the headliners. Against St. Bede, Jack was a bulwark of strength in the line. Another year and Jack would be a regular.

JOSEPH McGRATH, HALFBACK

Mac is one of the players that console a coach a bit when he thinks of the team that's coming up next year. Mac and Lawless are former team mates and they both display a powerful brand of football.

MULLEN

McGRATH

STAMM

MASELTER

NORTON, END

"Young" Norton is a brother of "Eddie," the well-known halfback. Though he does not play at halfback as does his brother he bids fair to shine as much at end as his brother does in the backfield.

WALKOVIAK, END

With his splendid build "Wal" should be another good prospect for one of the wing positions. He has a lot of natural ability coupled with an abundance of speed and endurance.

CHAPP, TACKLE

"Chappie" did not get into many of the games due to the prevalence of seasoned material for the tackle positions. His showing in the practice predicted a good season for this big boy next year.

PAUL NOLAND, END

Another of the group of men who are seeking the regular wing positions next year and the following year. Slender, fast and shifty, Paul has a good chance to take one of these places.

GEORGE HATTON, HALFBACK

"George" may be rather small for one of the backfield positions, but what he loses in height he makes up with his ferocity in plunging and running the end. George is slated for a good year next season.

NORTON

WALKOVIAK

CHAPP

NOLAND

HATTON

BIEDERMAN, CENTER

In his first year on the squad, "Bead" made an impression as a sure-fire passer. He is also a defensive man of high calibre. Should be useful next year at center.

DANIEL DONOHUE, END

An abundance of exceptionally clever ends kept Danny somewhat in the background because of lack of experience. With a year of football under his wing, Danny ought to take a few falls out of the opposition next year.

HILDON, CENTER

Another of the men who is expected to give Art Murphy some help in holding down center. Berwick's loss by graduation opens the place for someone and Hil has shown enough ability to do so.

WALSH, TACKLE

One of the big men on the freshman eleven. If his showing on that squad was any indication, he should prove to be a candidate for one of the regular positions, after his year's experience.

NEAL RYAN, CENTER

One of the best prospects Loyola has had in some years. Should be a big help next year. Neal made a big showing against Carroll and other schools he played against.

THE GAMES

THE MARQUETTE GAME

The first game of the year on September 26, gave many indications as to what the success of the team would be. Though the final score was 10-0 in favor of the Wisconsin university, the Loyola team played with such brilliance, that, had the game been played later in the season, the count would have been reversed. Five hundred Loyola rooters attended the game, which was played at the Marquette Stadium.

Captain Gorman gave the fans one of the biggest thrills of the season when he took the first kick-off and ran through the entire Marquette team for a 90-yard run. Marquette was held scoreless for the first quarter, but near the end of the second period Bader drop kicked a goal for the first three points. At the end of the third period, after completing several forward passes, Marquette made its only touchdown of the game.

The showing of the line was one of the big features. Berwick playing the entire first half with a painfully injured shoulder. The playing of Green and Lamont against Dilweg, Marquette's All-American end, predicted successful seasons for both of these men. Witry and Flynn, paired at the guards, worked together with such precision and effect that they were kept together all season. Joe Bush, who played the ends with Danny Lamont, did effective work in stopping Demoling, the Hilltop star.

LOYOLA versus MILLIKEN

THE MILLIKEN GAME

The second game of the season was played at Loyola Field against James Milliken University of Decatur, Illinois. A chance to score in the first half was lost after a forward pass from Johnson was grounded and Gorman was forced to kick. In the third quarter Stuckey and Norton took the ball around the ends for a gain of thirty-five yards after Gorman had made two first downs through the line. Stuckey then carried the ball to the twenty-yard line and plunged for the first touchdown on the next play. In the same quarter, Green tossed Bishop, a Milliken back for a twenty-yard loss, and Loyola took the ball on downs. Ed Norton then galloped through the entire Milliken defense and scored the second touchdown of the period. Stuckey missed the goal and the final score was 12-0.

It's A TOUCHDOWN!

Courtesy St. Louis Globe-Democrat

THE ST. AMBROSE GAME

At Davenport, on October 17, Loyola met St. Ambrose and defeated the Ambrosians by a 14-0 score. The Davenport team was unable to pierce the Loyola defense as they gained but two first downs through the line and these resulted from penalties. Ed Norton ran left end for twenty-two yards and the first touchdown early in the game. Again he ran sixty-five yards for a touchdown, but this was discounted by the referee who claimed "backs in motion." Al Cronin scored the second touchdown in the most brilliant run ever seen on the Davenport field. He intercepted a St. Ambrose pass on his own three-yard line, and, with the line providing the interference, he ran ninety-seven yards for the second score.

Danny Lamont and Joe Bush managed to keep busy by being on the receiving end of seven of the nine passes tried. Gorman's kicking was again worthy of mention.

THE DAYTON GAME

One of the topnotch games of the season was nearly spoiled by a day that almost ruined every conceivable brand of football. This game with Dayton University, October 24, at Soldier's Field, Grant Park Stadium, which had been expected to draw a mammoth crowd, was almost drowned out, but Loyola managed to eke out a 6-2 win. Loyola kicked off to the Dayton quarterback, who fumbled the slippery oval. Loyola recovered the ball on the Dayton 22-yard-line. After several line plays Eddie Norton scampered through the mud for the necessary yardage and made the only touchdown of the game.

LOYOLA versus JOHN CARROLL

Dayton's score came in the last minutes of the closing period, after they had completed their only pass of the game. Loyola took the ball on downs in the shadow of the goal posts and Gorman grounded the ball giving Dayton their only two points.

THE LOMBARD GAME

The Lombard game saw the upset of the dopesters for Loyola lost in a close game 13-7. Playing without Gorman, Gilmore and Berwick, the eleven scored in the second quarter and held the lead until the final minutes of play. Marty Griffen, the fleet halfback went around end for the score. Loyola seemed to have the game cinched but the Lombard collegians countered with a touchdown in the first part of the final period. They failed to kick the goal. With but a few minutes remaining, the Lombard quarter threw a pass that bounded off the back of the Loyola defense man. Mosher, Lombard halfback, scooped up the oval and scampered for the winning touchdown. Art Murphy and Danny Lamont shone in the line, while Stuckey, Adams and Cronin worked hard in the backfield.

THE ST. LOUIS GAME

November 14 brought with it the annual hegira to St. Louis to engage the Billikens. This time, unlike former years, Loyola came home on the long end of the score. St. Louis scored first but both Ed Norton and Whitey Cronin countered with touchdowns. Murphy, Green and Bush shone in the line, breaking up the passing attack and stopping Ramaciotti, the Billiken star.

Norton's end runs were responsible for both of the touchdowns. His running left St. Louis gasping as they had expected more of Loyola's passing attack.

The only thing to mar the triumph was the injury to Bill Stuckey in the first quarter. Stuckey was carried off the field with an injured leg. After a long siege in Mercy Hospital, Chicago, Stuckey was able to be about on crutches. It is doubtful whether he will be able to fill his regular position this fall.

THE JOHN CARROLL GAME

Before the Homecoming crowd Coach Roger Kiley and his team displayed a brand of football that stood the Cleveland team on their heads. Kiley did not employ the first team for the better part of the game and the showing of the other men forebodes much evil for the teams on next year's schedule. Brennan, Griffen, Downs and Lawless divided the honors in this game. In the second quarter Gorman drove for a touchdown, while Carroll came back with one a few minutes later. Norton, the end run specialty man, again broke through for a touchdown. Both Bush and Murphy were injured in this game and were out of practice for a week.

HASKELL GAME

The last and most glorious game of the year. The Redskins primed with victories over some of the best teams in the country, went down in defeat before a large crowd at Soldier's Field, Grant Park Stadium. The final score was 6-0. In that game more real football was displayed than Chicago has seen in some time. Every man who got into the game had some special claim to fame for his work. Gorman because of his kicking and timely plunging; Norton for his end runs and for the passes he caught. Two men shone particularly brightly that day. Phil Brennan was called in at the last minute to substitute for Joe Bush who was injured. Phil's catching of passes and the way in which he broke up the Indians' plays foretold to Kiley that he would be well supplied with a good end for at least two more years. Eddie Johnson who was taken ill on the night before the game was replaced by Lars Lundgoot. Lars played one of the fastest games of his career, outsmarting the Indians all the way. Ed Berwick topped off his collegiate career with a wonderful game; Meade, Burke and Green took all the glory at the tackle positions and withstood the attacks of the savage redskins. Witry and Flynn got a big writeup from Walter Eckersall, of the Tribune, the next day for their work at guard. And the man responsible for the lone tally was none other than Marty Griffen, the diminutive halfback. Marty ran the ends and completely baffled the Haskell ends. After Norton, Gorman and Lundgoot had taken the ball down the field, Bud passed to Brennan for five yards. Marty then swept around left end, eluding the tackles, for the only score of the game. Truly a wonderful game to climax a wonderful season.

McGRAW

THE CAPTAINS

Leonard McGraw and Howard Schlacks both had the honor of captaining the basketball five in 1925. Due to a deadlock which could not be broken both of these popular men were named captains and they alternated during the season. Howard Schlacks had been holding down his position at guard for the past three years and finished his collegiate basketball career with last season for he will be graduated in June. Schlacks has distinguished himself in all departments of the game. During the season Howie gave the forwards a run for the high point honors in scoring. His ability to break up the opposition's offense was a big factor in Loyola's showing on the court this year. His qualities as a leader were of the highest grade and in the games in which he acted as captain, the team continued to be the smoothly working squad that it was all season.

Lenny McGraw's absence next year will cause Coach Sachs more than one worry. McGraw has been an important factor in the basketball machine for the past three years. During this time he has held a regular forward position and led the squad in high point honors for two years. A shifty and finished floor man he gave the opposition much to worry about in stopping him when going for the basket. Lenny made a splendid leader, and topped off a long record of service to Loyola on court and diamond, with the highest honors.

Both Schlacks and McGraw will be lost to the squad next year. In addition both of these men were finished baseball players. They leave to the squads who will follow them a long record of clean and hard playing. Two years ago a rather unsuccessful season did not prevent them from giving their best, and with the high grade basketball team they led this year their long record of loyal service continued.

McGRAW

LEONARD McGRAW, FORWARD

Lenny shared the captaincy with Howie Schlacks and together they turned in the most successful season Loyola has had in some years. Lenny's playing at forward, his ability to ring up baskets, and his clean-cut playing will be missed next year when the team takes the floor. Muggsy's last year; he graduates from the Arts and Sciences Department in June.

DOOLEY

RUSSELL DOOLEY, GUARD AND CENTER

Dooley, to show his versatility, alternated at center and guard through the season. Though handicapped by an injured leg, Russ managed to get in a good percentage of the games and increased the enthusiasm the fans had for him. Dooley was a steady and reliable guard who played hard. Last year for Russ. Another owner of an Arts diploma in June.

HOWARD SCHLACKS, GUARD

Howie was the other half of the captaincy. Howie and Muggsy made a good pair in the games, too, for their ability to work together helped the team in its fine season. Howie is a guard of the first water. His work against Marquette and against Creighton will long be remembered by fans who saw those games. Howie, too, will take his degree with him at the graduating exercises.

TONY LAWLESS, FORWARD

Tony simply kept on going where he left off when he led the Spalding team to the first National Catholic Championship. His work at forward was one of the big sensations of the year. Though rather small, he is compactly built and his chief pleasure was to fool the "big boys" by dribbling around them. Lawless is back again next year and the opposition had better watch him.

JAMES BREMNER, CENTER

"Red-headed" Jimmie managed to be the surprise of the season, even though it was his first year on the team. Jimmie's eye for the hoop was sharp all season, and he also had the estimable quality of coming through in the pinch. Jim has a couple of years to play yet, and you'll hear a whole lot from him before he gets his sheepskin.

BREMNER

JOSEPH WITRY, GUARD

"Big Joe" took one of the guard positions at the beginning of the season and held on to it. His aggressiveness was at its height when the team was trailing. At taking them off the backboard Joe gave space to no one and many forwards will testify that Joe was hard to get away from, because of his ability as a guard and because he is easy to like.

REEDY

THOMAS REEDY, GUARD

Tom was especially valuable for his ability to drop them in from the corners of the court. As a guard Tom ranks with the best, as he is fast and shifty. Tom also has a couple of years left in which to give Loyola students something to talk about.

McGRATH

JOSEPH McGRATH, FORWARD

A teammate of Lawless' who began to make a name for himself in his first season. Though somewhat handicapped by a lack of brawn, Mac turned in some good games at forward. Mac is back again next year and should give a good account of himself.

LEE JACOBS, CENTER

Lee took part for the first half of the season only but managed to break in the scoring column with frequency. His work in the Kent College game gave an indication of what Lee would do if he had stayed the whole season.

TED VASKOWSKY, FORWARD

Though Ted played but the last half of the season with the Varsity he showed that he will be a valuable man on the squad next year. In the games in which Vas took part, his finished floor play and his accuracy on long shots gave the spectators a feeling of satisfaction that Ted will be back next year.

THOMAS HICKEY, FORWARD

Tom came up from Loyola Academy. Though handicapped by size, Tom will develop into a clever basketball player, as he is fast, brainy and shifty.

EDWARD JAMES, FORWARD

Ineligibility caused Eddie to leave the basketball squad after he had gotten a good start. Should develop into a valuable forward with another year of play.

HENRY REMIEN, GUARD

Though not breaking into the game very much Hank should, under Coach Sach's expert direction, develop into a formidable player.

LEO LEDERER, FORWARD

Lederer was kept in the background somewhat due to the presence of high class forward material. Leo will make himself valuable to the squad next year as he has the requisites for a good basketball player. Leo appeared for every practice and worked hard and earnestly.

THE GAMES

THE KENT GAME

The first game of the year was won by Loyola with the decisive count of 28-6. Every man on the squad got into the game at some time. Although they displayed much power in scoring, Len Sachs saw much which had to be corrected before the next game. Lawless and McGraw, forwards; Bremner, center; Schlacks and Witry, guards, was the combination which seemed to go at highest speed.

THE MERCER GAME

New Year's Eve brought Mercer University, of Macon, Ga., to the gym. With Lawless, Schlacks and Lee Jacobs doing most of the heavy work, Loyola kept the lead until the final five minutes of play. The Southerners then evened the count and took the tilt 34-27.

THE LOMBARD GAME

The Christmas holidays were disastrous to the team, for with Schlacks and Lawless out of the lineup, Lombard handed the team a 40-11 drubbing. The Galesburg aggregation displayed a superb brand of basketball, with Murphy their high point man.

THE LEWIS GAME

The team that had given Chicago University a tight game fell before the rejuvenated team 21-18 in a close battle. Lawless was still out of the game, but a new combination found the basket with comforting regularity. Last minute baskets by Schlacks and McGraw won the game.

THE ST. MARY GAME

Playing with a brilliance that smothered the St. Mary, Winona, Minn., quintet, Loyola rode over them 21-9 on January 11. "Red" Bremner displayed a good bit of the talent that gave him his rep in the Catholic League. Schlacks and Witry featured at the guards.

THE VALPARAISO GAME

The third straight victory was won at the expense of Valparaiso U., 32-21. Lawless, McGraw and Bremner took most of the honors in the first period, while Reedy, McGrath shone in the final period.

THE ST. THOMAS GAME

In a game that was more spirited than the score would indicate, Loyola took their fourth straight win from St. Thomas College, of St. Paul, Minn., 14-10. Dooley played brilliant ball in the first period. The second half was rather slow as Loyola could not count on their shots which were rolling off the rim. An off day for the boys.

THE DEKALB GAME

One of the most brilliant games of the season. Nip and tuck until the last gun with the score in favor of Loyola 26-25. With one team taking the lead and then the other, McGraw apparently had it all settled with two long baskets when the score was tied. Lawless, as usual, came through with the winning hoop. The fifth straight.

THE CREIGHTON GAME

The Creighton Bluejays, with wins over Minnesota and Kansas Aggies, made it six straight for the team. In another thriller which ended 22-21 it became generally known to the sporting world that Loyola had a six-cylinder machine. Creighton led at the half by two points, but Jimmie Bremner inevitable short basket and Schlacks' two long ones gave Loyola their margin of victory. Witry's playing at guard stopped the Creighton offense at critical times.

THE CARROLL GAME

Seven spelled bad luck for the Maroon and Gold team. Carroll of Waukesha, came down from the Badger state and handed us a 32-19 trimming. Reedy and Dooley replaced Joe Witry who was on the sidelines with a charley horse. Carroll specialized in over-the-head shots.

THE ST. LOUIS GAME AT ST. LOUIS

Traveling and the well known "jinx" linked together to keep us in the slumps for St. Louis gave us a 32-17 defeat down in the Mound City. The Bradburn sharpshooters piled up the points for the Billikens, while McGrath and Lawless were Loyola's best bets. Dooley was injured in this game.

THE VALPARAISO GAME

Determined to start another string of victories the team took a holiday on Lincoln's birthday and handed Valpo their second defeat at our hands, 25-16. Exceptionally good passing with accuracy in shooting baskets obtained this victory. Lawless and Witry were stars.

THE NATIONAL CATHOLIC INTERSCHOLASTIC BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

The great "Cardinal Cup Classic" was staged for the third time on March 18, 19, 20, and 21, 1926. This event has come to attract the best of the Catholic High School world to Loyola University, and the Tournament, in its third year, far exceeded expectations. Most of this, no doubt, is due to the earnest effort on the part of those who were connected with the National Catholic Interscholastic Basketball Tournament.

The founder of the Tournament, Mr. Joseph F. Thorning, S.J., left for St. Louis University to continue his studies. Reverend Dennis F. Burns, S.J., Athletic Director of the University, took charge of the tremendous task of organizing this gigantic enterprise. In order to lighten the burden of the mass of details, Edward Krupka, a Loyola University graduate, was named Executive Secretary. Mr. Thomas Divine, S.J., who directed the publicity campaign the year previous, again took charge of this department this year. Roger Kiley, Head Coach, acted as Director of the Tournament, while Leonard D. Sachs, basketball coach, was secretary of the Board of Directors. Mr. Joseph A. Gauer, president of the Maroon and Gold Club, was elected Chairman of the Executive Committee.

EDWARD KRUPKA
Executive Secretary

Under the guidance of these men the Tournament assumed the national aspect which has characterized it since its foundation. Requests for information began to pour into the Tournament from all parts of the Union, showing how great the interest in the Classic really is. Mr. John T. Dempsey, Jr., Chairman of the Reception Committee, again secured the Edgewater Beach Hotel as the headquarters for the National Catholic Basketball Tournament. Here the teams were to be quartered during their stay in Chicago.

Eighteen states were represented this year. Maine and New Jersey were two distant states which, for the first time, sent their Catholic State Champions to the Meet. Because of the closeness of the race for titular honors, in some states two teams were admitted.

The first day's play was characterized by the usual number of so-called upsets. Teams playing every brand of basketball that is displayed in the nation clashed on the floor in the first round. The high calibre of teams entered into the Tournament can be judged from the fact that there were nine games which were won or lost by the narrow margin of five or six points. Great crowds stormed the gymnasium during every period of play and the tickets for the final night were gone before Friday morning.

The teams that entered the semi-finals were Cathedral High School of Wichita, Kansas, Aquinas Institute, Rochester, N. Y.; St. Xavier High School, of Louisville, Kentucky, and Decatur Catholic High School, of Decatur, Indiana. These teams fought it out for the National Catholic Championship with the following result. The St. Xavier team of Louisville, won the title of National Catholic champs; Aquinas Institute, Rochester, N. Y., placed second. Third place went to Cathedral High School, Wichita, Kansas, while Decatur Catholic High School, Decatur, Indiana, completed the list of the place winners.

The semi-finals were played Sunday afternoon before a crowd that packed the Gymnasium. Four teams, representing the East, the South, the West and the Mid-West, were fighting for the National Catholic honors. Cathedral High School, of Wichita Kansas, was defeated in a game that bristled with action and interest by the close margin of one point, 15-16. The winning point was scored on a free throw after the final whistle had blown. St. Xavier, the representative of Kentucky, defeated Catholic High School of Decatur, Indiana, the same afternoon, 18-14, thus earning the right to fight it out with Aquinas Institute for the title honors.

The final evening of play was so replete with thrills and gala events that it is hard to record them on paper. The gymnasium was packed to the rafters with hundreds clamoring for admission. The rivalry between the rooters of the various teams was intense, the audience took sides with the various teams and added their din to the cheers of the fans.

Then, in one of the best games of the Tournament, the St. Xavier team was crowned National Catholic Champions, by virtue of their 18-16 victory over Aquinas. Aquinas led at the half by one point, their short passing game giving them a slight edge over the small Louisville team. In the final period the lead was taken first by one team, and then by the other. Kennedy, all-Tournament forward, matched wits with Hendricks, all-Tournament guard, in a wonderful exhibition of basketball. With but four minutes left to go Kennedy dropped a basket and his team took a two-point lead. The Southerners tied the score at sixteen-all with but two minutes left to play. From one end of the floor to the other, in a desperate effort to score, went the forwards of both teams. Smith, St. X. forward, set the crowd in a frenzy by making the winning basket and clinching the titular honors for his squad.

Thus the third annual National Catholic Basketball Tournament passed into history amid the cheers of the spectators. Then came the awarding of the trophies for which they had been fighting for the past two days.

The splendid Cardinal's Cup was awarded to the Louisville Champions, while the remainder of the trophies for first, second and third places were awarded to Aquinas Institute, Cathedral High School, and Decatur Catholic High School respectively.

The Hon. William E. Dever Trophy for the Chicago team making the best showing in the Tournament was awarded to St. Mel High School, National Champs of 1925. The William H. Powell Cup for the team scoring the highest number of points in the first round was awarded to Decatur Catholic High School. The P. J. Carr Cup for the team overcoming the greatest handicap to win the second half was won by the National Champions. The Sears-Roebuck Trophy for best coached team went to Aquinas. The three trophies donated by the Chicago Evening American were awarded as follows: Best sportsmanship trophy won by Catholic Central High School, Fort Wayne, Indiana. Best appearing team won by Decatur Catholic High School. Trophy for team making highest average of free throws awarded Marquette University High School. Loyola News Trophy for team making the least number of fouls given to St. Mary High School, Van Buren, Me. For the player of most value to his team, the Jack Schaack Trophy was awarded to Hendricks, of Louisville. The Peter J. Angsten Gold Medals were awarded to the following five men who were named on the All-Tournament team: Left forward, Evard, of Catholic Central, Fort Wayne, Indiana; right forward, Kennedy, of Aquinas Institute, of Rochester, N. Y.; center, Strong, St. Louis University High School; right guard, Hendricks, of St. Xavier, Louisville, and left guard, Campbell, of St. Viator High School, Bourbonnais, Ill.

ROBBINS' SCHOOL HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

By Charles L. Robbins, Ph.D., Professor of Education, State University of Iowa, in collaboration with Elmer Green.

The underlying plan of School History of the American People is to set up problems for the pupil to solve. It is a practical and effective method of investing history with meaning. Ask to see this book at Booth 148 of the International Institutional Exposition which is to be held at Hotel Sherman, June 21 to 25, during which time the Eucharistic Congress will be held in Chicago.

Note the following review from a recent issue of the Boston Transcript:

"Intended as a textbook for upper grammar grades or junior high schools, this history is arranged on a much better plan than many histories. The great epoch of American progress and the growth and development of the Nation of the United States of America is subdivided into periods each complete in itself. Its relation to previous events, and its relation to succeeding affairs is so well indicated that the student, without burdensome chronicles and dates to remember, understands the reason why certain events of our history were the direct and logical results of preceding conditions and causes.

"A chapter is devoted to each epoch of United States progress, and each chapter is introduced by statements of the conditions of the time. The author introduces political and social topics of importance during the various epochs. He makes his book a history of national growth and progress, rather than a chronicle of wars. The more recent problems of our Nation are discussed and the increasing friendship of the United States with the other peoples on the American continents, now so happily begun, is given full importance."

 ELECTRIC ERASER CLEANER
 to Work in your School

THE Little Giant has been tested by continuous use in thousands of schools throughout the country. It has proved to be efficient in all respects, noiseless, dustless, simple and swift in its operation. It is guaranteed to clean blackboard erasers to your entire satisfaction—or your money will be refunded.

The Little Giant is operated by a Universal motor, adapted to all electric currents; it is provided with nine feet of Underwriters' lamp cord with Universal plug ready to attach to any convenient lamp socket. Strongly made of malleable iron and aluminum, its weight is but eight pounds and can be shipped by parcel post.

BEST BUY WE'VE OFFERED SINCE WE STARTED—41 YEARS AGO

We started selling Real Estate in Chicago in December, 1844. In the 41 years that we have been in business we have sold millions of dollars worth of Chicago property. Few if any of the people to whom we have sold property failed to make a splendid profit. We believe in the future growth of Chicago and the territory nearby because we have sold property on the outskirts of Chicago (more than an hour's ride from Chicago) which is now worth ten times the price paid. But in all our 41 years' experience, we believe that we have never offered for sale a piece of property that has the possibilities for future advancement that we now offer in our Western Slope Subdivision of

BEAUTIFUL MUNDELEIN—THE ATHENS OF AMERICA

Among the reasons why we believe Mundelein Property is the best buy we have ever offered, we might mention the following:

1. Great religious, education, financial and transportation interests are determined to make Mundelein a clean, healthful, moral city of hundreds of thousands.
2. Plans have been made for improvement to cost $32,000,000 to develop this locality.
3. Madden Bros. Western Slope Subdivision is in the center of Mundelein, two blocks from the new $50,000 Terminal Station of the North Shore Line, Soo Line Depot, Bank, Post Office and the great St. Mary's of the Lake Seminary.

To the Students: You are very careful when you take your examinations. Be more careful when you drive an automobile. Over seven hundred people were killed last year in Cook County by automobiles. It is the young men that have the greater number of accidents. They usually drive with a lot of pep.
